 19 Introduction

20 In their opposition papers, the MGM Plaintiffs ("Plaintiffs") have failed to 21 offer evidence that controverts the facts set forth in Paragraph Nos. 2-7 of 22 MusicCity's Statement of Uncontroverted Facts, which relate to various capabilities 23 of the Morpheus software product. Accordingly, while Kazaa remains convinced that 24 defendant MusicCity is entitled to the full relief that it has requested in its Motion for 25
 27
 28

1 Partial Summary Judgment,<sup>1</sup> Kazaa and the other defendants are entitled at the very 2 least to an order deeming Facts 2-7 established for purposes of this case.

3 Argument

4 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 56(d) provides that even if a motion for 5 summary judgment or partial summary judgment cannot be granted in its entirety, the 6 court "shall if practicable ascertain what material facts exist without substantial 7 controversy." Fed. R. Civ. Proc. 56(d). That Rule further directs that the court "shall 8 thereupon make an order specifying the facts that appear without substantial 9 controversy." Id. See Diamond Door Co. v. Lane-Stanton Lumber Co., 505 F.2d 10 1199, 1202 (9th Cir. 1974) (where a summary judgment motion cannot be granted in 11 its entirety, "the court is to make an order specifying the facts that appear without 12 substantial controversy. . . ."); Goe Eng'g. Co. v. Physicians Formula Cosmetics 13 Inc., 1997 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 23627, *76-85 (C.D. Cal. 1997) (J. Keller) (court made 14 72 "factual findings" regarding facts the court found to "exist without substantial 15 controversy"); Society of the New York Hosp. v. Associated Hosp. Serv. of New 16 York, 367 F. Supp. 149, 156 (S.D.N.Y. 1973) (denying summary judgment motion 17 but issuing order under Rule 56(d) that specifies facts that exist without substantial 18 controversy).

22 <sup>1</sup> The Plaintiffs in both the Leiber case and the MGM case have argued that Kazaa's Joinder
23 in MusicCity's motion must be denied because Kazaa did not submit a separate Statement of 24 Uncontroverted Facts. Those responses misunderstand the purpose of Kazaa's motion. Kazaa is 25 not seeking independent relief for itself. Rather, Kazaa has merely joined in the request for relief 26 sought by MusicCity (i.e., for a judgment that MusicCity's distribution of its Morpheus software is 27 not contributory infringement, and for entry of the findings set forth in MusicCity's moving papers).
28 For this limited purpose, it was perfectly appropriate for Kazaa to join in the motion without submitting a full set of moving papers. Indeed, the MGM plaintiffs acknowledge at page 3 of their Opposition to Grokster's and Kazaa's Joinder that "Grokster and Kazaa can properly join in the legal arguments of MusicCity for purposes of judicial economy." As set forth above, that is all that Kazaa has sought to do.

1 Applying this Rule, it is appropriate for the Court to enter an Order specifying 2 that at least the facts set forth in Paragraphs 2-7 of MusicCity's Statement of 3 Uncontroverted Facts are undisputed, thereby deeming those facts established for 4 purposes of this case. Paragraphs 2-7 set forth facts relating to the capabilities of 5 MusicCity's Morpheus Software. More specifically, Paragraphs 2-6 state that "[t]he 6 Morpheus software product is capable of facilitating the search for, and 7 communication of"; 1) "public domain materials"; 2) "government documents"; 3) 8 "media content for which distribution is authorized"; 4) "media content as to which 9 the rights owners do not object to distribution"; and 5) "computer software for which 10 redistribution is permitted." Paragraph 7 similarly sets forth that "[t]he Morpheus 11 software is capable of facilitating the management, display, and play of media files on 12 a user's computer."

13 While Plaintiffs have objected to certain of the evidence proffered by 14 MusicCity, they have not offered any evidence to dispute these proposed findings,<sup>2</sup>
15 nor have they argued that the Morpheus software is incapable of the uses set forth in 16 the above-referenced paragraphs.<sup>3</sup> Instead, Plaintiffs have merely asserted that these

19 <sup>2</sup> In fact, Plaintiffs have submitted a declaration from Sean Mayers, Chief Executive 20 Officer of JIVE Media Technologies, Inc., reiterating that the Kazaa software is capable of 21 facilitating the search for media content for which distribution is authorized, and confirming that 22 such content is in fact made available by users of the Software. See Decl. of Sean Mayers 23 submitted in support of Plaintiffs' Opposition, ¶ 10; ¶ 12, lines 4-8.

24 <sup>3</sup> Plaintiffs' Declaration of Frank Creighton asserts that on February 9, 2002, the RIAA 25 used the Morpheus software to conduct searches for public domain works identified in the 26 declarations submitted in support of MusicCity's Motion, and found only a few of those works. See 27 Decl. of Frank Creighton, ¶¶ 32-33, 36. The fact that the RIAA located several public domain 28 works supports Uncontroverted Facts 2-7, as it is further evidence that the software is capable of the uses set forth in those paragraphs. The fact that the RIAA did not locate other public domain works proves only that persons who might make such works available through their use of the software might not have been using the software at the time of the RIAA's search. It does not refute the fact that the software is capable of facilitating the search for such works. Neither do plaintiffs refute the evidence attached as Exhibits C through E to the declaration of M. Tally George, demonstrating that George located several public domain and government works by using

1 facts are "not material", or that "[s]uch capability is not substantial or commercially 2 significant." However, these particular findings of fact do not purport to address the 3 "materiality" or "substantiality" of the uses; they merely address whether the software 4 is capable of such uses. On this record, there is no dispute that such capability is 5 present in the Morpheus software. Accordingly, under Rule 56(d), Kazaa and the 6 other defendants are entitled to a order that these potential uses "exist without 7 substantial controversy."

8 In sum, in light of Plaintiffs' failure to controvert the facts set forth in proposed 9 Uncontroverted Facts 2-7, there is no doubt that these facts "exist without substantial 10 controversy." Accordingly, it is both practicable and appropriate for the Court to 11 enter an order under Rule 56(d) deeming these facts established for the purposes of 12 this case.

14 Respectfully submitted,

15 DATED: February 25, 2002.
