

GaBI lays out the players in the biosimilar space

By Jonathan Loeb

July 07, 2011

In an article posted on July 1, The Generics and Biosimilars Initiative (GaBI) presents an interesting Venn diagram of the partnerships among the players vying for the prospective biosimilars market:

The diagram clearly shows how the lines between innovator companies and generic companies is breaking down in the rush to develop biosimilars to the blockbuster biologics which are coming off patent in the next few years.