

Introducing Subscription Plans For Deadline Management Software

Zlien, the nation's leading preliminary notice and mechanic lien preparation and management company, is excited to introduce subscription plans for its LienPilot deadline management application.

The LienPilot application allows contractors and suppliers to calculate mechanic lien deadlines in every state. Users are notified of upcoming deadlines by email and can import the calendar deadlines into a desktop calendar application (i.e. Outlook). The application is completely web-based, meaning you can calculate deadlines from anywhere with a browser and there's no software to update.

Available plans range from $19.95 per month to $149.95 per month, and offer subscribers unlimited access to Zlien's lien deadline calculating web software and discounts on document preparation services of up to 40%. A full-featured version of the application is available at no charge, limiting free users to managing three projects.

Scott Wolfe Jr., a construction attorney and founder of Zlien, has this to say about the subscription offering:

The new subscription plans are an exciting improvement to our service, and even though the software is becoming a paid service, our clients are excited about the change because of the built-in discounts for Zlien products. Many of our clients will actually save hundreds of dollars with the subscription plan. And of course, we still offer all of our services at competitive flat rates without any subscription required.

The available subscription packages are described on the Signup Page, and are copied below.

Free account or 30 days money back guarantee on all of our pricing packages - no questions asked. Either way you've got nothing to lose.
