

The Challenge of the Unlocatable Copyright Owner - Now Empirically Verified

November 19, 2010 by Bob Tarantino

Further to our earlier post (The Challenge of the Unlocatable Copyright Owner), Jeremy de Beer and Mario Bouchard have written a very interesting study entitled Canada's "Orphan Works" Regime: Unlocatable Copyright Owners and the Copyright Board. In addition to providing an excellent description of the existing "orphan works" licensing process, there is a detailed statistical analysis done on the efficiency of that process.

The articles and comments contained in this publication provide general information only. They should not be regarded or relied upon as legal advice or opinions. © Heenan Blaikie LLP.