

Jonathan Rosenfeld's Nursing Homes Abuse Blog

Chicago CNA Charged With Stealing From Deceased Nursing Home Patient

Posted by Jonathan Rosenfeld - September 23, 2010

Another CNA in Chicago has been charged with stealing jewelry from a deceased nursing home patient. This incident involves Vanessa May, a CNA at Wynscape Nursing Home in Wheaton, IL.

Ms. May remains in custody of DuPage County officials with a $50,000 bond. At this time, it is unknown when Ms. May's criminal trial will proceed.

DuPage County prosecutors have been busy pursuing similar cases. Earlier this summer, a charges were brought against an Advocate Good Samaritan Hospital worker who stole a wedding ring from a deceased patient he was responsible for transporting to the hospital's morgue.

My take:

If the charges related to these incidents prove to be true, we are dealing with some bad seeds here. However, I believe that the frequency of these atrocious events really is indicative of a health care industry that allows the 'bottom of the barrel' to work with our most vulnerable. Until the healthcare industry does a better job sorting though their applicants more trouble is likely around the corner.

Jonathan Rosenfeld represents victims of nursing home abuse and neglect throughout the country. For more information please visit Nursing Homes Abuse Blog (www.nursinghomesabuseblog.com), Bed Sore FAQ (www.bedsorefaq.com) or call Jonathan directly at (888) 424-5757.

Related:

Dog The Bounty Hunter' Takes Priority Over Resident Safety In Chicago Nursing Home

Nurse's Aide Steals From Alzheimer's Patient

Nursing Home Employee Charged With The Financial Exploitation Of Elderly Patient

Nursing Home Manager Accused Of Stealing From Resident