Before buying a new baby crib, or accepting a used one from a family member or friend, always take the time to check the Consumer Product Safety Commission's (CPSC's) Web page for crib recalls. Far too often, people buy these pricey items, only to learn months or even years later that they pose suffocation, fall, entrapment, strangulation and other hazards to infants. (The CPSC's list of recalled products goes back several years for many items.) Our firm tries to regularly help consumers avoid purchasing dangerous products by publishing a two-part review of each month's new CPSC list of recalled items.

Since the middle of 2010, a number of popular cribs have been recalled due to many of the potential dangers listed above. We have compiled the following list of recalled cribs so you can first check it against any cribs you're currently using. You may then want to print out extra copies of this list and share them with some of your community's infant daycare facilities.
