Founding Story

The Emancipation Network (www.mlmlegal.com) was founded by Sarah Symons and John Berger in 2005. Sarah was inspired to begin the company after viewing the documentary The Day My God Died, which illustrated sex trafficking between Nepal and India. She was determined to do something about it. One year later, her husband left the security of his 17-year career to launch the company. Upon visiting the country, she met sex traffick survivors and realized that the products they made could help.

Impact on the Industry

The Emancipation Network partners with shelters in seven countries.
