by Injury Attorneys Sacramento on 05/24/11

Thirteen people suffered major injuries in a Vacaville bus accident on Monday. The crashed happen shortly before 4:30 on Lyon Road, south of Cherry Glen Road near Interstate 80. The bus, travelling from Sacramento to San Francisco, had just exited the freeway when it veered off the highway through a fence and onto another road where it hit another vehicle. The victims were taken to local hospitals for the medical treatment. It is no reported that alcohol or drugs were a factor. The investigators are still trying to determine the cause of the accident. Early reports indicate that the bus had some technical malfunction.

People use public transportation such as bus lines for many different reasons, and one of them is to avoid the responsibility and risks that come with driving, especially late at night and early in the morning. However, using such an approach does not guarantee safety.

Injured victims of accidents always have to deal with a number of issues following each crash. It is very important to find medical attention immediately. You always have to get documentation of your treatment and prognosis as soon as you can. Seek follow-up attention to eliminate the risk of subtle injuries that go unnoticed. Talk to your insurer as required, but don't discuss potential accident causes. Consult with your lawyer first. Do not talk to any other insurance companies, and do not settle out of court without legal advice.

Drivers owe a legal duty of care to their passengers that requires them to keep those passengers out of situations of unreasonable danger and risk of harm. It's quite possible that the all injured victims could pursue legal claims against the Regional Transit. If successful, these claims would provide those who were harmed with several different forms of damages that are designed to compensate those who have been wronged. However, this analysis regarding whether or not legal claims should be filed should only be completed with the help of California personal injury lawyers who have spent years holding defendants of all types and sizes accountable for the harm they have caused.

All injured victims in accidents like this are strongly urged to consult with an experienced Sacramento Personal Injury Attorney to protect their rights. An experienced auto accident lawyer should also advise victims about how their car insurance policy or other insurance policies will apply to an accident
