American Dental Association finds financial barriers most often cited for not getting dental care

The American Dental Association’s Health Policy Institute published a research brief, Main Barriers to Getting Needed Dental All Relate to Affordability, that finds that during each year from 2013-2016, approximately 15.2% of Americans needed dental care but did not obtain it. The top three barriers cited for accessing care were financial reasons such as “could not afford the cost,” “insurance did not cover procedures,” and “did not want to spend the money.” Less often cited were non-financial barriers such as “afraid or do not like dentists,” “dental office is too far away,” or “too busy.” Financial barriers were most frequently reported among low-income working-age adults and seniors as well as high-income working-age adults. American Dental Association in April 2019

American Dental Association infographic details size of DSOs in U.S.

The American Dental Association’s Health Policy Institute published an infographic showing how big DSOs are across the U.S. It finds that 8.8% of dentists were affiliated with DSOs in 2017, up from 7.4% in 2015. By gender, 11.4% of female dentists and 7.3% of male dentists were affiliated with DSOs. By age, 17.9% of dentists aged 21-34 were affiliated with DSOs, compared to 11.3% of those ages 35-49, 4.5% of those ages 50-64 and 3.4% of those older than 65. By specialty, general practices were more likely to be affiliated with DSOs (9%), followed by orthodontics (8.8%), pediatric dentistry (8.5%), oral surgery (7.7%) and endodontics (7.4%). States with the highest proportion of dentists affiliated with DSOs were Arizona (18.4%), Nevada (17.8%), Texas, (15.4%), Indiana (14.6%), Wisconsin (14.6%), Georgia (13.5%) and Florida (13.2%). Alaska, Montana and Wyoming did not have any dentists affiliated with DSOs, according to the ADA. The ADA has also made available for purchase its 2019 Annual Dental Industry Report.

Aspen Dental's chief clinical officer says culture at heart of DSO's success

Dr. Arwinder Judge, chief clinical officer at DSO Aspen Dental, says he's seen the dental group grow with the addition of young and experienced dentists into the largest branded network of dental practices in the U.S., with more than 750 locations in 39 states. He says Aspen opens a new office every four days, and says Aspen's strategy to open offices revolves around building them from the ground up instead of acquiring existing practices. Judge says Aspen plans to add 80 locations in 2019, and its initiatives include a partnership with Align Technology that involves rolling out digital scanning and Invisalign to Aspen Dental offices. Aspen also collaborated with Walgreens to open the first of two planned Aspen Dental at Walgreens locations. Judge points out that dentists are increasingly opting into DSOs, and says Aspen's competitive edge comes from its culture, such as making major investments in its practice support infrastructure, opening a learning and development center in Chicago and opening an Aspen Dental scheduling center in Arizona.

SDM Northcoast improves delivery time for data reports, expanding its dental data network

SDM Northcoast announced improvements to its service offering by reducing the time it takes to produce monthly DPMSS (dental products market share) reports for customers. Historically, the data reports would publish nearly one month after data collection from dental distributors, but new algorithms will allow it to deliver reports five business days after we receive the last dealer sales files. SDM is also working to expand its dental data network and has secured commitments from additional dental distributors, direct sellers, and specialty product providers. It’s committed to double the number of data providers in its network to more than 40. It’s also revamping its web portal to allow users to view dental market trends and build customized dashboards of information, and will publish a series of research reports on the dental industry.

Owners of Mo.-based All About Smiles found guilty of $1M Medicaid, tax scheme

A federal jury found the owners of All About Smiles LLC, which operates several dental clinics in Missouri, guilty of a $1-million scheme to defraud the government by submitting false claims to Medicaid for dentures and other services and payroll tax fraud. Prosecutors alleged that the owners ran several schemes through the dental clinics from 2010 to 2015, mainly to provide dentures and other services to adults who didn’t qualify for Medicaid. The owners ran a similar scheme with orthodontic equipment, and also allegedly failed to forward payroll taxes to the Internal Revenue Service.

Washington dentists sue Delta Dental for more transparency, focus on patients

The Washington State Dental Association (WSDA) and three dentists are suing Delta Dental of Washington over calls to improve transparency in its operations and be more patient focused. The plaintiffs allege independent directors of Delta’s board have unlawfully rejected bylaw amendments overwhelmingly passed by the organization’s member dentists. The bylaws were designed to make Delta’s operations more transparent and patient-focused. At a Delta meeting, more than 91% of members present voted to adopt the amendments, the complaint says. Delta’s board of directors vetoed 12 of the member-approved amendments, while six amendments would not be implemented and three amendments would be implemented with conditions.

Federal court in Alabama throws out 7 of SmileDirectClub’s counts against dental board

A federal court for the Northern District of Alabama dismissed seven of the 11 counts SmileDirectClub brought against the Board of Dental Examiners of Alabama. SmileDirectClub filed the complaints after receiving a cease-and-desist letter from the dental board, which alleges the company of illegally practiced dentistry in Alabama by opening its first location in the state. SmileDirectClub claims the dental board practiced protectionism and discriminated against the company after ruling the company could not practice in the state. Its teledentistry platform allows out-of-state dentists to provide aligner therapy treatments. The board claimed the introduction of SmileDirectClub caused issues of health, safety and the well-being of patients seeking orthodontic care. Four counts were denied in the dental board’s motion to dismiss.
