

Do I need a Phoenix, AZ Criminal Defense Attorney? Detained for Further Investigation at a DUI Checkpoint!

By: Jeremy Geigle, Attorney at Law
JacksonWhite, P.C.

Sobriety checkpoints can be used to stop drivers and deter drinking and driving. In Phoenix, AZ, a sobriety checkpoint is usually set up in a fixed location in which motor vehicles are stopped by a police officer. While stopped, the driver operating the motor vehicle can be questioned or asked to provide documents, such as license and registration. Generally speaking, drivers can be stopped and observed for only a brief amount of time.

In order for a police officer to lawfully request to see a driver's license and registration or detain an individual for further investigation, reasonable suspicion of DUI must exist.
