Absolutely not! Did you know bankruptcy is a federal right? That's correct. Filing for bankruptcy protection is a constitutional right. You cannot give that right away. I have heard from clients that some pay day loans, title loan companies and even credit card companies that have tried to make people sign an agreement stating you "agree not to file for bankruptcy under any condition" or "you agree not to file bankruptcy if you take our loan" or even a waiver stating that you are "giving up their rights to file bankruptcy." That's one of those secrets they don't want you to know. You can file bankruptcy at any time and you can't give that right away. It is protected by the Federal Government. This is your opportunity for a fresh start and this is one journey you don't want to be on alone.
