

Adam M. Smith
Partner
Tel: 212-612-4995
ASmith@CoughlinDuffy.com

Eduardo DeMarco
Associate
Tel: 973-631-6046
EDeMarco@CoughlinDuffy.com

New York Appellate Division Holds Four Month Delay To Disclaim By Excess Insurer Violates NYIL §3420(d)

On January 17, 2012, the New York Appellate Division, First Department, overruled its own precedent by ruling that, in the context of bodily injury claims, insurance companies must notify policyholders "as soon as reasonably possible" when disclaiming coverage based on timeliness grounds, rather than delaying notice in order to investigate other possible grounds to disclaim coverage. This decision reinforces the need for insurers to issue prompt disclaimers as soon as they become aware of a basis to disclaim.

In this decision, George Campbell Painting v National Union Fire Ins. Co., the court held that where an insurer had sufficient information to disclaim coverage based upon late notice, a disclaimer issued on that ground nearly four months later did not comply with New York Insurance Law Section 3420(d) as a matter of law. That holding overrules a 2004 First Department case entitled DiGuglielmo v. Travelers Property & Casualty, in which that court had held that an insurance company could postpone denying a claim on timeliness grounds while it conducts further "investigation into other possible grounds for disclaimer" ("DiGuglielmo Rule"). In the George Campbell Painting decision, the court declined to follow, and expressly overruled, the DiGuglielmo Rule based on decisions of the Court of Appeals interpreting Section 3420(d) and the statute's underlying policy considerations, which the court concluded were furthered by the DiGuglielmo Rule.

The George Campbell Painting decision reinforces the need for insurers to disclaim coverage promptly after learning grounds for same, rather than waiting to complete their investigation on each and every potential coverage issue. In reaching its holding, the court focused on the information within the insurer's possession at the time of the initial notification, stating that, "[t]o be clear, not a single document or piece of information that [the insurer's] letter referenced in setting forth its basis for disclaiming on late notice grounds came into [the insurer's] possession after [the initial notification]."

In addition, the George Campbell Painting decision reinforces the need for excess/umbrella insurers to be mindful of their obligations under New York Insurance Law Section 3420(d). The insurer at issue in that decision was an excess insurer who, among other things, was investigating whether the putative additional insureds were in fact entitled to such status under the underlying primary policy. That excuse for the delay in sending the disclaimer was inadequate in the eyes of the court.

This decision reinforces the need for insurers to be diligent in reviewing claims and promptly responding to notifications, especially when they have grounds to disclaim coverage for a bodily injury claim.

---

About Coughlin Duffy LLP

Coughlin Duffy LLP is one of the fastest growing law firms in the northeastern United States, servicing a sophisticated national and international clientele. We provide a full range of legal services including all types of litigation, arbitration and transactional work on behalf of corporate, institutional, governmental and individual clients.

The materials presented herein are for information purposes only and are not offered as legal advice. No reader should act on the basis of these materials without seeking appropriate professional advice as to the particular facts and applicable law involved. Opinions presented herein are the opinions of the individual authors, and do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the firm of Coughlin Duffy LLP, or any of its attorneys or clients.

New Jersey
350 Mount Kemble Avenue
Morristown, N.J. 07962
Tel: 973-267-0058
Fax: 973-267-6442

New York
88 Pine Street, 28th Floor
New York, N.Y. 10005
Tel: 212-483-0105
Fax: 212-480-3899