

How To Choose a New Jersey DWI Lawyer

If you've been arrested for New Jersey drunk driving, it is critical to hire an experienced New Jersey DWI lawyer. There are many reasons even a guilty defendant needs a New Jersey DWI lawyer. First, you are presumed innocent under the law and a skilled lawyer may examine the strength of the evidence against you. Second, the police may have violated your constitutional rights by unlawfully stopping, testing, arresting, or charging you. Finally, a good New Jersey DWI lawyer may be the difference between jail time and license revocation with limited effects on your family, work and life, with the counseling and help you need to avoid a repeat DWI arrest.

If you are arrested for a New Jersey drunk driving offense, you should first evaluate your options. Can you afford an experienced NJ DWI lawyer? If not, you may need a public defender. Keep in mind that you get what you pay for and an experienced NJ DWI lawyer can help you secure an exoneration or a reduced sentence. Make sure to retain a New Jersey criminal defense lawyer that will evaluate all of the evidence before deciding whether to bargain for a reduced sentence or battle your charges in court.

In choosing a New Jersey DWI lawyer, inquire about the lawyer's win-loss percentages and evaluate his or her negotiation skills. Most DWI cases are plea-bargained; only a few cases proceed to court. Therefore, it is important to retain a New Jersey DWI lawyer who is experienced in DWI cases and is a savvy negotiator. In addition, look for a New Jersey DWI lawyer that is familiar with the judges and prosecutors, has a reputation as a fighter in court, and has a track record of success in DWI cases.

Another important factor in hiring a New Jersey DWI lawyer is your chemistry with the lawyer. Even if the lawyer looks great on paper, if you get a bad feeling or you do not think you will work well with that lawyer, look elsewhere for legal representation. Your case is too important to entrust to someone that you do not like or feel comfortable with. Not only will you be working with your lawyer, but you will also be working with the lawyer's secretary and paralegals. You should be comfortable with everyone in the office because many staff members will be involved with your case. In addition, the way lawyers treat their staff provides valuable information about the lawyer's character.

The New Jersey DWI lawyers at Helmer Legal are intelligent, experienced fighters who will make sure you have the best representation possible. While you should explore all your options, the New Jersey DWI lawyers at Helmer Legal may be right for you.